

Berdin A. S., Bliznyuk D. I., Gerasimov A. S.

Defining the nodal equivalent parameters using synchrophasor measurements.

The method for defining the nodal equivalent parameters of grid elements based on synchrophasor measurements during transients in a power system is proposed. It allows to define the topology and parameters of nodal equivalents and makes it possible to implement adaptive models for problems of power system control.

Keywords: nodal equivalent, adaptive model, synchrophasor measurements.